How is that an old straight-sided, long-faced, blue-complexioned, white neck-tied preacher or deacon will find a congenial, comfortable and agreeable companion, and will hold sweet converse and loving companionship with some fleshy, cross-grained, hard-beaded old German? Is there any congeniality between such persons as my little friend, Bingham, over there, and my sedate old friend, Verterena; and yet if you should see them in when its soft, sweet, full clear notes could be heard. Nothing makes home so pleasa lodge-room together, you would take them for twin brathers. incongruities, orthodox, heterodox, para-dox and pepper-box characters all mingle together, clasp hands—yes, love each other in concord and peace.

But I have said that this was no time or pecasion to listen to see merits or defense of Odd Fellowship. Happiness is our object to-day—freedom from the world's care, its bigotry, its selfishness and its troubles. What signifies to us the denunciation of the man in pontice il robes, the bigot, the skeptic, the brainless fool or the madman? Truth and right may be stayed for a season by the habd of man; but when necessity for success comes, that hand withers, instice triumphs, and we have naught to fear. If the seed or the principles of Odd Fellowship are naught but the invention of the human intellect, gotten up to please and gratify the human understanding without any the human understanding, without any of the God-giving and sternal element within it, then it can only exist for a time and will vanish away forever.
